RUGBYMag.com is proud to announce its full slate of Men's Collegiate All American teams.

The RUGBYMag staff chose to name an All-Collegiate team of 30 players, which includes American college students attending school overseas, and players from all divisions in US college rugby.

In addition, RUGBYMag.com named an All-CPD All American Team, as well as All American teams from DI and DII (which we already announced, but are listed again here).

"There are several exceptionally talented players attending college overseas," said RUGBYMag.com Editor-in-Chief Alex Goff. "In the end we chose only one for the All-Collegiate Team, but there's a very good chance we will be picking more in the coming years."

National CPD Champions Cal lead all selections for the All-Collegiate team with ten, including their entire back row.

Four non-CPD players make the All-Collegiate team: Davenport University flyhalf JP Eloff, Georgia wing Will Farrell, Temple center Gareth Jones (who spent most of the year studying abroad and playing for Young Munster), and Trinity College Dublin flanker Scott LaValla, who is also the only full 15s Eagle on among the selections.

“We made the selections based on recommendations, scouting reports, statistics, video, and personal observations,” said Goff. “We didn’t look to spread the selections out geographically. We picked who we felt were the best players. If a player missed a large part of the season due to injury, that hurt his chances, which is a shame. But the competition was enormously fierce. I am sure someone could come up with another selection of 15 players who would be almost as strong. Still, congratulations to all those selected.”
